

takes input from a scanner and passes it through the game logic which signals enemy and player movement.